

SECTION 210 -- PREPARATION AND SUBMISSION OF STRATEGIC PLANS

210.1 Introduction.

This section provides instructions for preparing and submitting your agency's strategic plan, and outlines the relationship between strategic plans and annual performance plans.

Strategic plans center on those programs and activities that are key to carrying out an agency's mission. Although a plan's focus is programmatic, an agency may selectively supplement this with coverage of important administrative functions or initiatives that will aid in the conduct of its programs.

As an agency, you use the strategic plan to align your organization and budget structure with your missions and objectives. In matching programs and activities to your mission and objectives, the strategic plan can also be a means for re-aligning and re-engineering functions and operations. Preparation of a plan also provides an opportunity to consider programs and activities that can be terminated, reduced in scope, or transferred elsewhere.

Strategic plans should guide the formulation and execution of the budget. For agencies, these plans are a tool used in setting priorities and allocating resources consistent with these priorities. A strategic plan is not a budget request, and the projected levels of goal achievement must be commensurate with anticipated resource levels.

The basic requirements for strategic plans are set forth in Section 3 of GPRA (see Exhibit 210A). A strategic plan contains the following elements:

- A comprehensive mission statement;
- A description of general goals and objectives;
- A description of the means and strategies that will be used to achieve the goals and objectives;
- A description of the relationship between performance goals in the annual performance plan and general goals and objectives in the strategic plan;
- Identification of key factors that could affect achievement of the general goals and objectives; and
- A description of program evaluations used, and a schedule for future evaluations.

SECTION 210 -- PREPARATION AND SUBMISSION OF STRATEGIC PLANS

More detailed guidance on strategic plan elements is provided in sections 210.6-210.11. Requirements for the letter transmitting plans are included in Section 210.13.

210.2 Timing of strategic plan submissions.

Summary of Requirements: Agencies submit an updated and revised strategic plan to Congress within three years of submitting their initial strategic plan. Thereafter, an updated and revised strategic plan is submitted every three years. Transmittal of updated and revised strategic plans will be no later than September 30, 2000 and September 30, 2003 for most agencies. Agencies are to provide OMB with an advance copy of the plan at least 45 days before transmitting the plan to Congress.

(a) Submission of an initial strategic plan.

GPRA required agencies to submit their initial strategic plan to OMB and Congress not later than September 30, 1997. In the future, newly established agencies or agencies previously exempted from GPRA requirements should use the provisions of this subpart when preparing and submitting their initial strategic plan. The date for submitting an initial plan is coordinated in advance with OMB.

(b) Requirement for submission of updated and revised plans.

As an agency, you must submit an updated and revised strategic plan (an updated plan) at least once every three years. This three-year revision cycle has the effect of updating your existing plan for its remaining years, as well as chronologically extending it by three or more years. (See section 210.3 on the period covered by a strategic plan.) The revision incorporates policy, programmatic, or other changes to any element of the agency's current plan. An updated plan will often retain, unchanged, the elements of a previous strategic plan, such as the mission statement.

(c) Submission date for updated and revised plans.

GPRA does not set a specific calendar date for these submissions. Agencies submitting plans in September 1997 would subsequently submit their first updated plan no later than September 30, 2000. The several agencies transmitting an initial plan after September 1997 would have three years from their submittal date.

The three-year cycle begins anew with the submittal of your updated strategic plan to Congress. Thus, agencies submitting an updated strategic plan by September 30, 2000 would submit a second updated plan no later than September 30, 2003

(d) Interim adjustments.

You may make minor adjustments to a strategic plan in advance of the three-year revision cycle. Adjustments can include changes to the general goals or objectives, the means and strategies used to achieve the goals, the key external factors, or the program evaluation schedule. Modifications may reflect altered circumstances or evaluations of program performance. Interim adjustments are selective and do not produce widespread changes in a plan.

Append an interim adjustment to your annual performance plan (the annual plan) as a separate, easily found section. This annual plan section identifies and describes your minor adjustments to both Congress and the public. Only the adjustments are presented, not the entire strategic plan. Either a final annual plan or a revised final annual plan may be used (see subsection 220.6(d)).

You need not consult with Congress, or conduct outreach to potentially interested or affected parties when preparing interim adjustments. Adjustments do not require a formal transmittal (see section 210.13). You should distribute, or otherwise make publicly available, the interim adjustments so readers can reference or review the most current strategic plan content.

Significant changes to your strategic plan are made using the more extensive update process, even if this accelerates the three-year revision cycle. Consultation requirements apply in these instances.(see section 210.12). Interim adjustments do not alter the three-year revision cycle for strategic plans.

(e) Advance copies of submissions.

Consistent with current policy and practice regarding interagency clearance of certain material being sent to Congress, you provide OMB with an advance copy of an updated strategic plan at least 45 days prior to the date for transmitting the plan to Congress and making it available to the public (see section 210.12 on recurring consultation with OMB during plan development.)

210.3 Time period covered by strategic plans.

Summary of Requirement: A strategic plan must cover a minimum of six years.

A strategic plan spans a minimum six-year period: the fiscal year it is submitted and at least five years forward of that fiscal year. (For example, a plan submitted in FY 2000 would cover FY 2000 through FY 2005.) A plan may be for a period longer than six years; for example, containing a project completion goal ten years in the future. A strategic plan, while covering a minimum six year period, is only current for three years (see section 210.4 and Exhibit 210B).

The extent of strategic plan coverage for the current fiscal year depends on the transmittal date. A strategic plan submitted at the end of a fiscal year need only briefly cover that fiscal year; a paragraph or two should suffice.

210.4 Relationship to submission of annual performance plans.

Summary of requirements: An annual performance plan, when submitted, must be covered by a current strategic plan.

You should note the specific linkage between strategic plans and annual plans. Your strategic plan's goals and objectives set the framework for developing your annual plans. Consequently, GPRA states that an annual plan may not be submitted for a fiscal year not covered by a current strategic plan. (See also section 210.9 on the relationship between general goals in a strategic plan and performance goals in an annual plan.)

Although an annual plan must be covered by a current strategic plan, the strategic plan need not be current during the actual fiscal year for which the annual plan was prepared. A subsequent strategic plan (updated and revised) could be current during the actual fiscal year. The submission of an updated plan supersedes the fiscal year coverage of the previous strategic plan.

Strategic plans submitted in September 1997 were current for the fiscal year 1999 through 2001 performance plans, including the transmittal of the 2001 performance plan to Congress. An updated strategic plan submitted in September 2000 would supersede coverage for the fiscal year 2001 performance plan. The updated strategic plan would also be current for annual performance plans for fiscal years 2002 through 2004. Exhibit 210B illustrates the fiscal year annual plan coverage of strategic plans.

210.5 Strategic plan features.

Summary of requirements: A strategic plan must cover the major functions and operations of the agency.

(a) Major functions and operations.

A strategic plan must cover the major functions and operations of your agency. You have discretion to omit support-type activities and operations. Strategic plans prepared primarily for your agency's internal use (such as those prepared at a program or component-unique level) may cover a greater range of functions and operations. You should note that annual plans are required to cover every program activity in the Program and Financing Schedules in the Budget Appendix for your agency. Thus, annual plans often have greater programmatic and organizational scope than strategic plans (see section 220.8).

(b) The single strategic plan.

You should strive to submit a single agency-wide plan. By 2003, the strategic planning process should be sufficiently mature in all agencies to support preparation of a single agency-wide plan. However, GPRA allows an agency with widely disparate functions to prepare several strategic plans for its major components or programs. The number of separate plans for major components or programs shall be kept to a minimum.

Separate plans should center on the major functions for an agency and group related programs or components within any plan. The several plans should collectively cover all major functions and operations of the agency.

An agency-wide strategic overview is prepared when more than one plan is submitted by an agency. The overview links separate strategic plans by giving an overall statement of the agency's mission and goals. The overview should accompany the submission of the separate strategic plans. When submission dates for an agency's separate strategic plans vary significantly, the overview is modified to reflect the content of the plan being submitted at a particular time. An overview is subject to consultation requirements, if appropriate consultation did not occur during development of the several strategic plans.

If an agency prepares numerous site- or organization-specific strategic plans for component units or sub-programs, these should not be merely packaged together and submitted as a single strategic plan. The ensuing size and detail of such a compilation will reduce the plan's usefulness. Instead, the information from individual strategic plans should be integrated into a single agency-wide strategic plan, or into the several, separate strategic plans that the agency chooses to submit for its major programs or components.

(c) Integration with management and other reforms.

Because of their scope and importance, strategic plans can be used in developing a comprehensive and integrated approach to performance management. When preparing an updated strategic plan, you should incorporate and apply the products and processes resulting from other ongoing performance-related efforts.

These initiatives include customer service standards, performance partnerships, activities introducing a more precise cumulation and allocation of cost, performance-based contracting, analyses of tax expenditures, training and skill improvement of agency staff, and your previous strategic plans. Other processes and products related to regulatory reform, agency restructuring, re-invention, re-engineering, and personnel appraisals tied to program or organizational performance should, as appropriate, be reflected in a strategic plan.

(d) Cross-cutting programs.

Cross-cutting programs and activities are undertaken by several agencies to achieve a common purpose or objective. This is often a mutual effort by the agencies. In preparing an updated strategic plan, agencies should review the strategic plans of other agencies that participate with the agency in a cross-cutting program. This will complement the inter-agency coordination that should occur during plan preparation (see also section 210.12).

An agency formally assigned lead responsibility for a cross-cutting program should include any agreed-on goals and objectives for the program in its plan. Other agencies having principal responsibility for particular goals should be identified.

Agencies participating in a cross-cutting program should each describe in their strategic plan, the interface between their related programs, and outline how individual agency efforts synergistically support common endeavors.

(e) Perspective and outlook.

Updated plans transmitted after 2000 should include a perspective, or scan, of current economic, social, demographic, environmental, international, or other conditions that are relevant to the major functions and operations of the agency. The plan should also include a forward-looking description of prospective changes in the conditions over the timeperiod covered by the plan. Agencies are encouraged to cover a longer timeperiod if data are available.

The description may reflect observed trends, anticipated shifts, and the effect of agency actions. This perspective and outlook should provide programmatic context to the reader. Agencies wishing to develop scenarios when preparing future updated strategic plans should coordinate this in advance with the appropriate OMB representative.

While the perspective and outlook and external factors section may cover similar conditions, the scope and nature of the descriptions often differ. The following hypothetical example illustrates these differences: In government health care services for an aging veteran population, the Department of Veterans Affairs could provide data on its current patient population (the current perspective), and how that population is expected to change over the next 5-10 years, as many of the World War II veterans die (the outlook). None of this information should nominally appear as such in the external factors section. What the Department might identify and include as an external factor would be (unanticipated) breakthroughs in treatment modalities that significantly prolonged life, and increased both the number of living veterans and the cost of medical care.

(f) Format of strategic plans.

No specific format is prescribed for your strategic plan. An updated strategic plan is a complete plan, containing all required plan elements.

A plan that brings related elements together often aids plan review. For example, such a plan would tie the relevant means and strategies, external factors, etc., to the appropriate general goal(s) or objective(s). This contrasts to a format where each plan element has its own separate section, thus compelling readers to jump back and forth between the sections.

You should consider the prospective readership of your strategic plan when determining length, style, and understandability. Brevity and conciseness will likely characterize plans that are useful and widely read. The plan's design should provide for easy and quick access through the WorldWideWeb. (See section 213(d) on public availability of strategic plans.)

(g) Classified appendix.

A classified appendix covers any material specifically authorized under criteria established by an Executive order, to be kept secret in the interest of national defense or foreign policy. An agency may include a classified appendix in a strategic plan where appropriate.

210.6 Comprehensive mission statement.

Summary of requirement: An agency strategic plan must include a mission statement.

The mission statement should be brief, defining the basic purpose of your agency, with particular focus on your core programs and activities. In addition, you may supplement the mission statement with a concise discussion of enabling or authorizing statutes, as well as identification of issues that Congress specifically charged your agency to address. An agency may include a summary list of those laws and directives relevant to the conduct of its core programs and activities as a plan appendix.

Vision statements, which often enunciate agency values or principles, may be included in a strategic plan. A vision statement should be proximately placed with the agency mission statement.

210.7 General goals and objectives.

Summary of requirements: An agency strategic plan must include one or more general goals (or objectives). The goal(s) must be defined in a manner that allows a future assessment to be made on whether the goal was or is being achieved.

(a) Purpose of the goals.

Strategic plans set out the long-term programmatic, policy, and management goals of your agency, outlining planned accomplishments and the schedule for their implementation. The general goals and objectives should elaborate on how your agency is carrying out its mission and will often be outcome-type goals. (See section 210.9 for a discussion of the relationship between general goals in strategic plans and performance goals in annual performance plans.)

The general goals and objectives should be sufficiently precise to direct and guide agency staff toward actions that fulfill the agency's mission. An agency may rely on the actions of others in achieving a general goal or objective (see section 210.10).

General goals and objectives should not go beyond an agency's span of influence. An agency's span of influence may extend beyond its span of control. For example, an agency may directly provide services. The actual delivery of these services is within its span of control. The same agency may fund others to provide similar services. The delivery of these services are within an agency's span of influence (and, depending on the specifications for service delivery, might be within its span of control as well). However, when delivery of these services by all parties has a very small economic impact, an assertion in a strategic plan that delivery of these services significantly affected national economic growth would go beyond the agency's influence on the overall economy.

(b) Defining the goals and objectives.

General goals and objectives should be stated in a manner that allows a future assessment to be made on whether the goals were or are being achieved. A general goal that is defined quantitatively facilitates such a determination. However, a measurable goal need not be quantitative (e.g., it can describe the achievement of a single event, such as astronauts landing on the moon).

When general goals and objectives are defined in a way that precludes a direct future determination of achievement, the performance goals and indicators in the annual plan should be used to provide the basis for the assessment. In defining general goals and objectives, agencies should avoid platitudes or rhetoric that is inherently unmeasurable, either directly or through the use of performance goals and indicators.

210.8 Description of how the general goals and objectives will be achieved.

Summary of requirements: The agency strategic plan must describe the processes, skills, technologies, and various resources that will be used to achieve the general goals and objectives. (These are often called the means and strategies.)

This element describes the means and strategies your agency will use to achieve its general goals and objectives. These can include:

- Operational processes;
- Skills and technologies; and
- Human, capital, information, and other resources.

Descriptions of the processes, technologies, and resources should be brief. You should provide additional detail only when goal achievement is predicated on a significant change in either the resource levels, the technological or other capacities, or the mode or functioning of the operating processes.

Your agency should use reasonable projections of the funding and staff that will be available over the time period covered by the plan. You include schedules for initiating or completing significant actions, and any underlying assumptions or projections.

As appropriate, achievement of goals and objectives may rely on tax expenditures, user fees, other types of collections, regulation, or activities and products of other Federal agencies, States, local governments, or non-governmental entities. Reliance on other governments or parties should be addressed in key external factors (see section 210.10).

You should include a brief description of steps being taken to resolve mission-critical management problems. A mission-critical problem poses a realistic and prospective impediment to carrying out the agency's mission or achieving the general goals and objectives during the strategic plan timeframe (see also subsection 220.11(e)).

The strategic plan should briefly describe your agency's efforts to provide high quality and efficient training opportunities for employees.

The means and strategies section of the plan should outline the process for communicating goals and objectives throughout the agency, and for assigning accountability to managers and staff for achievement of objectives.

210.9 Relationship between goals in the annual performance plan and a strategic plan.

Summary of requirement: A strategic plan must describe the relationship between the general goals and objectives in the strategic plan and the performance goals (and indicators) in the annual performance plan.

Performance goals and performance indicators in your agency's annual performance plan should be based on the general goals and objectives in your strategic plan.

The updated strategic plan should briefly outline:

- The type, nature, and scope of the performance goals being included in annual plans,
- The relation between the performance goals and the general goals and objectives, and
- The relevance and use of performance goals in helping determine the achievement of general goals and objectives.

To a great extent, the performance goals indicate the progress in a fiscal year toward achieving the strategic plan's general goals and objectives. As such, performance goals that represent milestones in achieving the general goals and objectives of a strategic plan may be appropriate. General goals in strategic plans and performance goals in annual plans may be identical in some cases, especially when outcome goals are to be achieved in a particular year.

210.10 Key factors affecting achievement of general goals and objectives.

Summary of requirement: A strategic plan should identify those key factors, external to the agency, that could significantly affect the achievement of general goals and objectives. If key factors cannot be identified, a statement of such should be included in the plan.

(a) In general.

Achievement of general goals and objectives can be affected by certain previously prospective conditions or circumstances actually occurring during the time period covered by the plan. These conditions or circumstances are identified in the plan as key factors, and provide insight on the presumptions an agency used when defining its goals and objectives. Key factors may enhance or nullify these assumptions and the likelihood of goal achievement.

These factors are often called external factors, as they are introduced by external forces or parties, and are not of the agency's own making. The factors may be economic, demographic, social, or environmental, and they may remain stable, change within predicted rates, or vary to an unexpected degree. Goal achievement may also be predicated on certain conditions (events) not happening. Achievement of goals can also depend on the action of Congress, other Federal agencies, States, local governments, or other non-Federal entities.

(b) Identifying key factors in the strategic plan.

Each key external factor should be described in a strategic plan, indicating its link with a particular goal(s) and describing how achievement of the goal could be directly and significantly affected by the factor.

Factors that are unlikely to occur, or have only tangential influence on the general goals and objectives, should be omitted from a strategic plan. Factors that simply restate basic presumptions, e.g., 'goal achievement depends on future agency budgets being at requested levels', usually have little informational value and should also be omitted. If key factors cannot be identified, the agency should include a statement to this effect in the strategic plan.

(c) Mitigating actions.

In its strategic plan, an agency should not detail mitigating actions, contingent steps, or alternative courses to be taken in the event a key factor actually begins affecting goal achievement. To do so will likely complicate the plan with speculative scenarios, arrays of what-to-do-ifs, or demonstrations of how little real effect any agency attempt at intervention might have. For example, the appearance of global climate phenomena, such as El Nino, can affect environmental quality, agricultural production, the location, severity, and cost of natural disasters, and economic growth. As agencies are incapable of ameliorating such phenomena, a strategic plan that included mitigating actions might consequentially be replete with goals for strong El Nino years, 'normal' years, and strong La Nina years.

Rather than including lists of potential mitigating actions in a strategic plan, an agency should modify the plan through an interim revision (see subsection 210.2(c)) if an external factor begins affecting goal achievement. The agency may need to prepare an updated and revised plan if dictated by the magnitude of the factor's effect.

210.11 Program evaluations and strategic plans.

Summary of requirements: A strategic plan should contain a schedule for future program evaluations, including the methodology to be used. The plan should also describe the use of completed evaluations in preparing the plan. If program evaluations are not scheduled during the timeperiod covered by the plan, a statement of such should be included.

(a) Program evaluations.

Program evaluations cover assessments, through objective measurement and systematic analysis, of the manner and extent to which Federal programs achieve intended objectives.

Under GPRA, program evaluations also encompass assessments of program implementation processes and operating policies and practices when the primary concern is about implementation rather than program outcomes. This form of program evaluation is often called a 'process' evaluation.

(b) Future program evaluations.

A schedule for future program evaluations is included in the strategic plan. The schedule should outline the general methodology to be used (e.g., a longitudinal study), the timetable, and the general scope of the evaluation, as well as particular issues to be addressed. At a minimum, schedules for future evaluations should cover the fiscal years prior to the next update of the strategic plan.

The need for, and appropriateness of, doing a program evaluation may depend on the nature of an agency's programs and how the general goals and objectives in the strategic plan are defined. If an agency will not be conducting program evaluations during the time period covered by the plan, a statement to this effect should be included in the plan. (See also subsection 220.5(f) on including information on analyses and studies, other than program evaluations, in the annual performance plan.)

(c) Completed program evaluations.

The program evaluations that were used in preparing the updated strategic plan should be briefly described. The effect of program evaluations on the definition of goals and objectives in the plan should be highlighted.

210.12 Consultation.

Summary of requirements: When preparing a strategic plan, agencies must consult with Congress and solicit and consider the views of interested and potentially affected parties. This consultation and outreach may result in contrary views being expressed (see section 210.13).

In developing a strategic plan, your agency must consult with Congress, and also solicit and consider the views and suggestions of entities--such as customers and other stakeholders--potentially affected by or interested in the plan.

You have discretion in how this consultation and outreach is conducted. An agency's existing consultation processes may be used. The development of strategic plans is not subject to the Administrative Procedures Act.

Some general goals and objectives may relate to cross-agency functions, programs, or activities. In such instances, agencies may have a shared responsibility for defining and achieving general goals or objectives in these cross-cutting areas. Agencies should ensure that appropriate and timely consultation occurs with other agencies during development of strategic plans with cross-cutting goals and objectives.

To help ensure that an updated strategic plan conforms with statutory requirements and is consistent with national policy, continuing interaction should occur between OMB and agency staff over the full course of plan preparation.

210.13 Transmittal of plans to Congress and OMB.

Summary of requirements: The plan is transmitted to Congress by the agency head. Transmittal letters are addressed to the Speaker of the House of Representatives, the President and the President pro tempore of the Senate, and the Director of OMB. Distribution is also made to relevant committees of the Congress. The letter transmitting the agency strategic plan to Congress includes a summary of the consultation and outreach processes, and any contrary views. Strategic plans are made available to the public.

(a) The transmittal letter.

A letter from your agency head formally transmits the strategic plan. A transmittal letter is also prepared for a strategic overview containing only a summary presentation of overall mission and goals (see section 210.5). A transmittal letter will include:

- A summary of the general scope and nature of the consultation and outreach, and the types of entities consulted (see section 210.12); and
- A summary of contrary views received.

Transmittal letters are addressed to the Speaker of the House of Representatives, the President and the President pro tempore of the Senate, and the Director of OMB. Copies will be provided to the chairmen and ranking minority members of the relevant authorization, oversight, or budget committees and appropriation subcommittees, and the chairman and ranking minority members of the Senate Committee on Governmental Affairs and the House Government Reform Committee. Copies may also be distributed to other members of Congress or committees.

(b) Contrary views.

A strategic plan will often reflect hard choices, with a plan's usefulness often corresponding to the difficult policy and programmatic decisions that were made during its development. In many instances, there may be disagreement about particular goals and objectives, or the means by which the goals will be achieved. The transmittal letter should summarize those views received from entities outside the Executive Branch of the Government that disagree, in a substantive and germane way, with the programmatic, policy, or management courses-of-action presented in the plan. The summary should generalize the degree of disagreement and the source(s). Contrary views should not be individually attributed or listed.

An agency may wish to concentrate principally on summarizing those contrary views offered as the proposals in the plan became more specific, and less on those generated during its initial, more formative stage.

(c) Use of non-Federal entities.

GPRA states that the preparation of a strategic plan is an inherently governmental function, and the plan is to be drafted only by Federal employees. However, when preparing a plan, agencies may be assisted by non-Federal parties, such as consultants or contractors. Their role may include collecting information, conducting studies, analyses, or evaluations, facilitating outreach, or aiding in the presentational aspects of the plan. (The Report of the Senate Committee on Governmental Affairs provides additional examples of the use of non-Federal parties in the preparation of GPRA plans and reports; pages 25 and 26, Report 103-58, June 16, 1993.)

(d) Public availability of plans.

Strategic plans are a matter of public record; the public should be afforded the opportunity to access the completed plan. Your agency should place the strategic plan on its WorldWideWeb site, or make it available through other electronic media. On request, a paper copy should be provided. Generally, a strategic plan should become publicly available when the plan is transmitted to Congress.

Section 3 of the Government Performance and Results ActSEC.3. STRATEGIC PLANNING

Chapter 3 of title 5, United States Code, is amended by adding after section 305 of the following new section;

“§ 306. Strategic Plans

“(a) No later than September 30, 1997, the head of each agency shall submit to the Director of the Office of Management and Budget and to the Congress a strategic plan for program activities. Such plan shall contain---

“(1) a comprehensive mission statement covering the major functions and operations of the agency;

“(2) general goals and objectives, including outcomes-related goals and objectives, for the major functions and operations of the agency;

“(3) a description of how the goals and objectives are to be achieved, including a description of the operational processes, skills and technology, and the human, capital, information, and other resources required to meet those goals and objectives;

“(4) a description of how the performance goals included in the plan required by section 1115(a) of title 31 shall be related to the general goals and objectives in the strategic plan;

“(5) an identification of those key factors external to the agency and beyond its control that could significantly affect the achievement of the general goals and objectives; and

“(6) a description of the program evaluation used in establishing or revising general goals and objectives, with a schedule for future program evaluations.

“(b) The strategic plan shall cover a period of not less than five years forward from the fiscal year in which it is submitted, and shall be updated and revised at least every three years.

“(c) The performance plan required by section 115 of title 31 shall be consistent with the agency’s strategic plan. A performance plan may not be submitted for a fiscal year not covered by a current strategic plan under this section.

“(d) When developing a strategic plan, the agency shall consult with the Congress, and shall solicit and consider the views and suggestions of those entities potentially affected by or interested in such a plan.

“(e) The functions and activities of this section shall be considered to be inherently Governmental functions. The drafting of strategic plans under this section shall be performed only by Federal employees.

“(f) For purposes of this section, the term “agency” means an Executive agency defined under section 105, but does not include the Central Intelligence Agency, the General Accounting Office, the Panama Canal Commission, the United States Postal Service, and the Postal Rate Commission.”.
